CRISIS IN BALKANS NEAR BREAKING POINT

Turkey's Cabinet Considers Special Message From Hitler

SOPIA HEARS REPORT BRITAIN IS READY TO SEVER RELATIONS

BULLETIN

Sofia, Bulgaria, March 4.—(P)—British Minister George W. Rendel informed United States Minister George H. Earle today that Britain was breaking relations with Bulgaria tomorrow and Earle instructed the American legation to start preparing to take over custody of British property throughout the country. A special train had been ordered for tomorrow, but Earle was informed its departure may be delayed a day or two, depending on when Rendel can finish preparations for leaving. Nazi troop movements into Bulgaria and toward her Turkish and Greek frontiers continued to swell in volume hourly.

By The Associated Press

Turkey's cabinet went into emergency session today to consider a special message from Adolf Hitler which Balkan diplomatic quarters described as a high-pressure move on Turkey to forsake her British alliance and join the Axis—"since only the Reich can protect Turkey against the historic designs of Russia."

Russia's age-old dream, it was recalled, centers on gaining an outlet to the western world—presumably via the Turkish-guarded Dardanelles.

Simultaneously, authorized Nazis in Berlin served blunt notice on Greece that she cannot "serve two masters." An evident reference to Greece's alliance with Britain and the fast-spreading sweep of German control through the Balkans.

While the Turkish cabinet considered Hitler's message, the Turkish government took further measures to prepare for war, asking all industries to report at once on the maximum productive capacities of their raw materials on hand.

Germany's Luftwaffe attacked the port of Cardiff, South Wales, with a five-hour hail of incendiary bombs last night—described by British officials as one of the greatest raids of the war—while RAF bombers pounded Cologne in the German Rhineland.

Dispatches from Cardiff said smoking ruins marked a trail of destruction across the city this morning.

The toll of dead and wounded was not immediately estimated. During the night, as wave after wave of Nazi warplanes swept the city with fire-bombs and high explosives, the American Red Cross rushed ambulances from London, 160 miles away.

Amid this surge of renewed aerial violence, the crisis in the Balkans moved nearer the breaking-point.

Authoritative quarters in London said Britain might break off relations with Bulgaria "within the next 24 hours"—with the action presumably to be followed by a declaration of war.

A high neutral diplomatic source, in Sofia, quoted British Minister George W. Rendel as saying he has now decided to sever British relations with Bulgaria within 36 hours.

Rendel is said to have full freedom of action concerning the rupture, which may ignite the long-expected Balkan bonfire.

Unconfirmed advices said RAF planes had already been sighted flying high over Bulgaria.

Reports from Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, said the movement of German troops from the north continued apace with lines of Nazi motorized equipment, tanks, anti-aircraft guns and field artillery—sometimes in columns 50 miles long—streaming south into Bulgaria through three mountain passes.

A German mission arrived by plane from Ankara, Turkish capital, and delivered to Turkey's president, Ismet Inonu, what was believed to be a special message from Adolf Hitler containing assurances that Nazi troops were not planning to enter Turkey.

Turkey was reported speeding reinforcements to her frontier with Bulgaria.

A Swiss telegraphic agency dispatch from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, reported "increasing preliminary conversations are under way for an armistice between Greece and Italy."

But this was unconfirmed elsewhere, and London said Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Gen. Sir John G. Dill, chief of the imperial general staff, were working out a plan with Greek government leaders in Athens to rush aid to Greece in the event of a Greek attack.

In view of this, the Soviet government declared:

"The Soviet government cannot share the opinion of the Bulgarian government as to the correctness of the latter's position in this matter, since it is a position—irrespective of the desire of the Bulgarian government—which does not lead to consolidation of peace, but to extension of the sphere of war and to Bulgaria being involved in it."

Penn's National Guardsmen Are Ready For Limbering Up Work Before Heavy Training

With Formal Opening of $10,000,000 Reservation as Cantonment Out of Way, Camp Settles Down to More Realistic Army Life

BY RICE YAHNER
Associated Press Correspondent

Indianapolis, March 4.—(P)—Pennsylvania's National Guardsmen knew they were in the army today after their commander declared "we will not coddle them." The 13,000 citizen-soldiers started "limbering up" in preparation for 13 weeks of rigorous training.

With the formal opening of this $10,000,000 reservation as a federal cantonment out of the way, the camp settled down to a more realistic army life throughout the next year of training.

The 800 commissioned officers heard Maj. General Edward Martin declare after yesterday's dedication ceremonies that, while the men will not be coddled, they "must be well fed, well clothed and well equipped."

Emphasizing the need for intelligent leadership, Martin said:

"The Soviet government cannot share the opinion of the Bulgarian government as to the correctness of the latter's position in this matter, since it is a position—irrespective of the desire of the Bulgarian government—which does not lead to consolidation of peace, but to extension of the sphere of war and to Bulgaria being involved in it."

Richard P. Brown Explains Resignation as Secretary Of Commerce Due to Fact He Decided to Step Down Rather Than Let Pennsylvania's Tourist Advertising Become "Political Football"

STATEMENT INJECTS THE NAME OF ESTES

Harrisburg, March 4.—(P)—Richard P. Brown said today he resigned as secretary of commerce in Governor James' cabinet rather than let Pennsylvania's tourist advertising become a "political football."

Brown, in a statement, injected the name of Carl Estes, close friend of the governor, into the dispute with James over the agency that should handle the state's $165,000 tourist advertising campaign. Brown said:

"On January 17th, Carl Estes, formerly of Texas, and now of Bryn Mawr, Pa., called me on the telephone at my home to say that he wished the tourist advertising of the department of commerce transferred to the (Benjamin) Eschman Company. I replied that I would resign before the state's advertising was made a political football."

Brown resigned late yesterday giving as the reason a "fundamental difference of opinion" in the operation of his department. He was the commonwealth's first secretary of commerce—a department created by James soon after he took office in 1939.

James said Brown's "attitude appears to me to be completely unbecomingly."

Appointment of Carl Estes as park commissioner was approved by the Senate committee for the Communist hearing was Dr. Joseph P. Kamp.

Charles Musante was recommended by the police committee for appointment as borough patrolman and was approved. He will start duty tomorrow night, it was stated.

Although bids were received for the purchase of a police car, it was found that they did not conform to specifications and all were rejected. The police committee was authorized to re-advertise for bids to be opened at the April meeting.

The fire committee opened bids for the purchase of a chassis and body for a new fire truck to be assembled at the April meeting.

At Busy Session Council Approves Daylight Saving, Fills Vacancies And Transacts Routine Business

Tracy M. Greenlund is Elected Police Court Justice; Carl Rogers Park Commissioner and Chas. Musante New Patrolman

MANY BIDS OPENED

At one of the busiest sessions held in several months, the Warren borough council at its March meeting in the municipal building last night, approved daylight saving time for the borough during the coming summer; named a police justice, park commissioner and borough policeman, and transacted other business of importance.

Start of the meeting was delayed about ten minutes when only nine members, one short of a quorum, appeared. However, three additional members of council finally arrived, permitting the meeting to continue.

With one of the twelve having been excused before the daylight saving question was brought before the body, the proposition for moving the clocks ahead was carried by a vote of 8 to 3. Those voting against the adoption of "fast time" were D. L. Baldensperger, G. H. Klinefelter and R. H. Morrison.

Councilmen F. W. Waite, J. H. DeFrees, W. H. Murphy, P. C. Braunschweiger, D. W. Lewis, C. A. Miller, W. R. Walsh and J. G. Smith voted for daylight saving.

The motion adopted directed the burgess to issue a proclamation asking the people of Warren to move their clocks ahead one hour at midnight on Saturday, April 26, and to return them to standard time at midnight on Saturday, September 27.

But one application for the office of police justice was received, that of Tracy M. Greenlund, recently appointed justice of the peace. Upon recommendation by Chairman DeFrees, of the police committee, he was elected unanimously.

AID BILL DISCUSSED BY EARLY

White House Secretary, in Statement to Reporters, Expresses Opinion That "A Good Many Efforts to Confuse and Mystify and Inject Poison Into Defense Setup Now Going On Are Probably Related to Opposition of the Measure"

FINAL VOTE BELIEVED UNLIKELY THIS WEEK

Washington, March 4.—(P)—Senator Wiley (R-Wis.), announcing his opposition to the administration's British aid bill, said today that "if we put our feet into the Atlantic for Britain, Hitler may goad Japan" into attacking the United States.

Wiley's expression came on the fourteenth day of Senate debate, while Stephen Early, White House secretary, was telling reporters that he thought "a good many efforts to confuse and mystify and inject poison into the defense set-up are now going on."

These efforts, Early said, were "probably related to the opposition to the lend-lease bill."

Declaring that congress had "no right" to pass the buck "of directing foreign policy to the president," Wiley said in an address prepared for delivery in the Senate that he believed there was a "serious possibility" that if the bill as presently drawn became law American defenses might be impaired and this country might be involved in war.

Senator Nye (R-ND) told reporters after a meeting with other leaders of the opposition, that opponents of the measure were willing to begin consideration tomorrow of committee amendments, thus ending the first phase of formal debate which entered its fourteenth day today.

The consensus of the opposition group was reported to have been that a final Senate vote on the bill was not likely to come until the middle of next week because of anticipated lengthy discussion of some controversial amendments.

Conn went as the court imposed sentence. His pretty wife, Mrs. Florence Conn, sat dry-eyed as her husband was led away. She had testified that he had been drinking on the night of the slaying last January.

It was pointed out by Councilman Lewis, chairman of the new projects committee, that the addition was needed to carry on the Civil Pilot Training Program here. The addition will house a shop and a classroom. It was estimated that the addition would cost approximately $5,500, with the borough's share, under a WPA project, would be $5,000 to $3,500.

Burgess Steber recalled the history of the airport and the manner in which it is leased to Warren Airways, Inc., for operation. He said this organization appears willing to flip out of the picture and permit the borough to take active charge of the airport's operation, thus providing for some return on the cost of the hangar addition.

A committee composed of Councilmen Smith, Murphy and Walsh was named to assist the burgess and solicitor in negotiating with the Warren Airways.

Sale of the old LeFrance fire fighting equipment to be used here was authorized upon recommendation by the fire committee. This truck is to be sold to the Clarendon Fire Department for $250.

It was pointed out that this pumper was a 1912 model and answered its first call here in April, 1913.

One matter which brought forth much discussion was that of providing fire protection to persons residing outside the borough. After considerable discussion on the proper method of remunerating the borough for this service, the matter was placed in the hands of the fire committee to investigate and report at the next meeting.

Councilman Lewis reported on the progress of WPA projects. Up on motion by him, the purchase of sewer pipe for the South Side sanitary sewer at a cost not to exceed $450 was approved.

Councilman DeFrees reported that the police radio, to be installed here, has been completely assembled at the factory. He said its installation is delayed, pending the assigning of a frequency by the Federal Communications Commission. He said all local policemen are taking a special course to learn to operate the radio.

Mr. DeFrees reported receipts of $783.59 from the parking meters during February, with $235.00 going to the manufacturers to apply on the cost of the second installation.

He also reported that several requests have been received for a traffic light at the intersection of Fifth and Conewango avenues. This matter is now being considered by the committee, he reported.

Approval of the placing of a street light on Madison avenue, about 300 feet east of Franklin street, was given by council.

The building committee reported two building permits issued during the month. The sale of four

'Pells a Hoppin' to Be Feature of High Students' Carnival

Although each show of this year's high school carnival is expected to be the best ever staged in Warren High School, the feature attraction "Pells a Hoppin'" under the direction of Harry Summers, is termed by the committee as the most surprising and entertaining show of the evening.

The carnival is scheduled for Friday night and "Pells a Hoppin'" is to start at 7:30 sharp. For twenty-five minutes there will be vaudeville acts, consisting of threats, insults, shootings and other acts of general confusion. Eleven boys of the high school will furnish the music and comedy.

There will also be a vocal selection by "Skinsy" Erickson. The show will end with gifts for everyone. There will be but one showing.

"Flight From Destiny" In Warner Bros. "Flight From Destiny", Jeffrey Lynn plays the part of an artist, and Geraldine Fitzgerald is his unrelenting wife. In real life, Lynn admits he can't draw a straight line with a ruler, while Geraldine is actually an accomplished painter, who studied at the Dublin Academy, before she turned to the theatre.

Thomas Mitchell, James Stephenson and Mona Maris round out the cast of screen favorites in the film which was written by Barry Trivers from an original story by Anthony Berkeley. Ace director Vincent Sherman, brought out all the highlights of the exciting screen play. Advance reports from both coasts say that it is one of the most unusual stories ever to be shown on the screen.

Invisible Woman Practically every principal in Universal's "The Invisible Woman", now playing at the Library Theatre, has a role in the film which represents a surprising departure from conventional film characterizations.

Virginia Bruce has the title role, a comedy part far different from her many romantic roles. John Barrymore steps into a "straight character" after a series of madcap comedy delineations. John Howard has the curious assignment of carrying on a romance with "The Invisible Woman".

ALONG CAME CINDERELLA

By VIVIAN GREY

YESTERDAY: Lovely Dave has been trying to make up for a girlhood in which she was denied everything by living twice too fast, now that she is the wife of wealthy Roger Cosgrave. But one day her crowd broke an invaluable Ming vase, bearing up to Roger's mother, and it brought Lovely to her senses. Now she asked Roger to meet her for a special tea, and a surprise.

Chapter 24
Surprise

LOVELY kissed her finger and touched it to the tip of Roger's nose.

"That's for a perfect lover," she said, and then turned him around. "Look," she said.

On a small table, perfectly minded, was the Ming vase. Roger's eyes lighted. Lovely had done a painstaking and excellent job.

"For Marcia?" Roger asked.

But Lovely said it wasn't.

"I asked her if she wanted it," she continued. "She said she didn't, and has already put a beautiful old piece in its place—something Aunt Amalia gave her from the tons she has stored away. But even that wasn't what I minded it for. With characteristic honesty, 'I did it for me, as a sort of reminder. A reminder, I mean, if you see, that I mean.'"

"I think I do, Lovely," he said tenderly.

They had tea then at a small table before a wide window that looked out toward the river. A freighter moved lazily along the channel, a large American flag painted on its side. Lovely watched it, her eyes pensive. The regular mail plane zoomed over head. The sound of guns at Camp Smith came faintly on the quiet air.

"I'm knitting for the Royal Air Force," Lovely said. "The yarn came today. And I'll have to economize. I'm giving half my allowance to their Aid Fund."

Roger's heart welled with quiet happiness. Of course, all of Lovely's impulses would respond generously to a need.

And the roof of Granny Hale's house covered a sort of life that was light and tender and gay and pleasant. Lovely got fun out of little economies though her life was etched against a background of elegance. Flowers on the table, spotless linens, leisure for making and keeping herself in a state of bandbox neatness and Hollywood beauty.

There was a new car in the garage. It was Lovely's own. Roger's gift to her.

"For getting my wife back," he told her.

Lovely learned to drive quickly, as she did everything else. And she drove too fast, as she did everything else.

Roger would get home to find the house dark. He'd hear the scream of tires on a curve. Wheels grinding gravel. Then Lovely would burst upon him in a wild flurry of fine scents and fine clothes and gay exclamations. And with an unfinished piece of knitting trailing along somewhere.

"All the way from New York to my own door in sixty minutes! Yes, in an hour darling! From Gertrude's. And oh, precious, I haven't got a red cent left. Not a cent! It was Sunny's birthday."

Roger kissed between the words.

"You've been drinking," he accused. "In daytime. And on the road alone."

Big News

"ONLY three cocktails. After all, it was Sunny's birthday. And darling! Oh, my darling," her voice rising to a high ecstatic note with some glorious thing she was about to impart. "We're going to have birthdays of our own to celebrate. Oh, Roger, my blessed, we are! We are!"

"Lovely," suddenly tense, "what are you talking about?"

"Don't you know? Can't you guess? She danced around the table the meal and set opening a box of roses putting them in a low bowl in the center."

"Oh, Lovely," Roger knew with a certainty what she meant. His heart was in his voice.

"And I'll weep if it isn't a boy just like you!"

Lovely's elation made right everything that had been even faintly wrong. It put to rest all of Marcia's fears for the future of her son's married life. Any girl who could be so thoroughly happy at the prospect of her first baby must be fundamentally right.

Lovely went on with her life as if nothing was about to happen. She was photographer. She was a natural for photographers. Lovely at the horse show. At the dog show. Lovely at the field trials. Lovely on the golf links. Lovely as the smart hostess for a smart party.

"Don't you think you'd better ease up?" Roger asked.

"Why?" the question came brightly.

"Because I am looking forward to a son or daughter, darling, a well, healthy, whole one."

"I'll give you that lambie pie."

"Lovely, darling, if you'd only begin to think with that gadget you use for a brain."

Then our trouble would begin," was her gay reply.

And Aunt Amalia watched her one day as she romped in the pool, and asked Roger:

"Well, my boy, how do you like the merry-go-round you're living on?"

Roger smiled gently at Amalia's tartness.

"Lovely's got her points, Aunt Amalia," he said. "She's good, as kind and sweet in her intentions as can be. You'll see that after while."

Amalia sniffed.

"Oh, yes, even the worst women have their good points."

But the time came when Lovely had to slow up. She did it gracefully, even prettily. And Roger watched over her like a mother cat over its first and only kitten.

Meantime Emily, grown a little more lovely as time emphasized her wistfulness, came week ends at the urgent plea of the whole family and sat quietly in a big chair knitting gay little garments. Marcia said to her husband:

"If only she wouldn't. Something about it gives me the creeps. It's almost as if it was to be her child."

And Cosgrave, man-like, said: "I think its very fine and generous of Emily."

"Of course it is," Marcia's reply came quickly. "But you don't see what I mean at all. It's—it's weird."

Lovely had settled down to a very quiet life and an only partially patient waiting when Aunt Amalia gave one of her impressive and beautiful family dinners as an outward sign of her complete acceptance of Roger's wife. Lovely was gracious and glamorous and beautiful. Roger was proud of her.

Lovely even went to the hospital with a gay gesture, and in a few hours was smiling up at Roger and speaking in a voice that was only a little less lush and full-toned and beautiful than usual.

"Hi—yah, papa! Go say good morning through the glass to Roger!"

"Lovely!" he exclaimed as he kissed her eagerly, "you're not going to call her 'Rogette'?"

"I'm telling you, darling!"

And Ring down in New York looked at the wire Girl showed him telling of Rogette's arrival and said: "Another crazy name! It sure is in the blood!"

Roger took Emily to the hospital to see his family, and the last day, as a special privilege, Emily was allowed to hold the baby a moment. She stood just beside Roger. They looked so right together with Emily holding the baby. As always with Lovely the thought became vocal.

"You look as if you belong together."

"I hope we always will, all four of us," Roger said quickly. He had not been aware of a misty quality about Emily that somehow was like unshed tears. He sensed it suddenly and knew why she did not speak.

Smooth Sailing

LOVELY and Rogette came home with a fanfare of flowers and gifts and good wishes and calls and telegrams and telephone messages.

"You know," Lovely said in one of her rare quiet moments in the nursery with Roger and the child, "there hasn't been a word from Joe. I thought he'd be the first one to wish me happiness with Rogette and to want to see her."

"Perhaps he doesn't know," Roger suggested.

"Perhaps he's deaf, dumb and blind! Doesn't know when all the New York papers have printed reams about his name and career within a few days of his naming my baby Cinderella? Whether I wanted it or not?" Lovely always got to the kernel of truth in a situation.

"I know what it is," she said after a little silence. "Mari ruined him. He's probably slinking away ashamed somewhere. I'm going down to see his mother and make him sign out of it."

At the door he said. But Mrs. Hulse, who cleaned offices at night and by day did fine washing for the feminine guests in a nearby hotel, could tell her nothing about Joe. He had disappeared.

"Not getting you's what did it," Mrs. Hulse said, but with bitterness. Her life had been beyond bitterness. He should have stayed with his own kind."

Lovely was touched, and oddly frightened. Joe didn't belong. But then neither did she. She had not stayed with her own kind. That night she seemed to want to cleave more safely to the heart of her family.

"If anything should happen to us," she said, "I'd want to die."

"Nothing can, unless we let it," was Roger's reply.

Lovely was charmed and fascinated by Getta as the baby was called. She was a sweet and beautiful miracle for the girl to whom life had suddenly turned such a kind and generous face. Lovely was, in many ways a surprisingly good mother. Her new position seemed to bring to life within her even greater tenderness for helpless creatures. Respect and love for her grew like a well rooted tree in the Cosgrave family.

It was Getta's first Thanksgiving that Aunt Amalia claimed. She had lost her heart to the child.

"I want her Thanksgivings," Amalia said. "Surely you can grant me that much."

And so it was to be a big family dinner at Amalia's that first Thanksgiving of little Getta's life. A strangely assorted family. Marcia and Kar, Roger, the two women who loved him and the daughter one had given him.

And it was that Thanksgiving Katie chose for her wedding to Bill Stark.

HARD TIME GETTING TOGETHER

Entering its third month, the Pennsylvania Legislature is making haste slowly so far as actual legislation is concerned. Up to adjournment last week the assembly had disposed of only one item—emergency relief financing.

This rate of accomplishment strengthens predictions of leaders as far back as January 7, when the 1941 session convened, that the body would have at least a five-month tenure.

Two bills have been enacted, one to appropriate $14,500,000 for relief in March, April and May; the other transferring some of the money for that purpose from the motor license fund.

The Senate has no House bills on its calendar; the House has but one Senate bill. The important tax bills are in House committee, held there by the Democratic majority while it investigates the Republican administration's budget requests. On the other hand, the Republican-controlled Senate has been just as wary about bills bearing a Democratic stamp.

In hope of a short session, it will be recalled, Governor James, in his opening message to the 1941 Legislature, appealed to the Democratic House and G. O. P. Senate for "harmony." In addition, the executive submitted his budget February 3, earliest date a biennial budget had been received in years.

The Democrats criticized the budget and started an inquiry into its provisions. This may continue until the end of March, and meantime there will be no action on taxes.

However, sessions lasting into June are no novelty for the assembly in modern times. In fact, the leaders count a little bit on a rising temperature to discourage prolonged debate and hasten a final adjournment. It will be remembered the 1939 regular session quit at the end of May. The 1937 session adjourned June 8th.

This situation on Capitol Hill is merely history repeating itself. It is a repetition of what has always happened in the past when the Senate and House were controlled by different political groups. Leaders of both parties, looking more to the future, rather than for the best interests of constituents of the present, are sure to battle to the finish, whether adjournment is in June or September.

BREEDS TROUBLE AND DISEASE

It is not much of a compliment to the community for the Warren Board of Health to find it necessary to issue a public warning that the practice of disposing of garbage and other refuse on or about vacant lots and other places in the borough must be stopped or the offenders will be arrested and called upon to defend themselves in justice court.

Besides being unsightly, the health officials call attention to the fact that the practice of throwing garbage in back yards or vacant lots is not only dangerous to the public health, but constitutes a violation that is punishable by a fine if the guilty persons are apprehended.

We believe there is too much civic pride in the community to make it necessary for the Board of Health to take action so drastic as to cause arrests in a matter so vitally important to every citizen.

LEARN ABOUT YOUR SCHOOLS

Special attention is called to the first of a series of special articles on the subject "Do You Know Your Schools?" which appears on another page in this issue.

The sketches are being prepared by the Warren Borough Teachers' Association in such manner as to provide pertinent facts about the schools in a concise and interesting manner.

Readers who follow them closely will doubtless find they contain valuable information that will be helpful in creating a better understanding of many of the problems confronting school officials.

Appointments made by council at the March meeting to fill existing vacancies should meet with general approval in the community. The selections are: all type citizens and we are glad to congratulate Park Commissioner Carl Rogers, Justice of the Peace Tracy M. Greenlund and Patrolman Charles Musante.

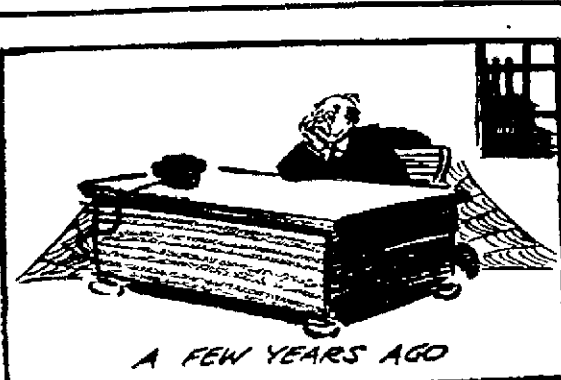

Have you noticed that the January thaw which arrived in March took out the ice in the river?

WARLIKE PREPARATIONS IN PACIFIC

Washington, March 4—If you like to bet a few bucks on a long shot now and then, you might care to take a chance in support of the guess that there won't be any war with Japan for either the British or the United States for some time to come. Your ordinary horse sense should give you the necessary conviction to play this hunch.

Warlike preparations there will be. Lots of them. With plenty of shadow boxing, shouting, threatening, moving about of battleships, troops, guns, airplanes, building of new bases for submarines, naval patrols, diplomatic fencing in official statements, strengthening of all the fortifications from Singapore to San Diego. Everything leading right up to open hostilities. But not the hostilities.

All the preparedness for war in the Pacific, on the part of both the British and the United States is perhaps the best reason why the actual fighting won't come.

The best of observers in Washington are of the opinion that the Japanese government itself does not know what its program in the Pacific is to be, any more than the United States government knows what its program is to be in Europe.

Officially, we have stated that our program is to stay out of war in Europe, but we don't know that we're going to be able to do it. Officially, Japan has stated that her program is to take over all of Oceania and the Orient, but she doesn't know that she'll be able to do it.

Both these doubts are based on the seldom-admitted but none the less true confession the best of diplomats will make in confidence—they aren't superhumans, they don't have all the information they should have in making decisions of policy, and plenty of things just don't happen according to Hoyle.

Uncertainty is no greater than the uncertainty of any other country—Britain, France, Germany, Italy or the United States—as to where it will be one year hence. There are, in Japan's case, additional elements of uncertainty in plot.

But the greatest uncertainty of all is the situation with regard to Germany's threatened invasion of England. That is, from the Washington point of view, the key to unlock the secret of what happens in the Balkans, in Africa, in the Orient.

If Germany invades England and decisively defeats the British at home, then anything can happen and probably will. Without Germany (Turn to Page Five)

Interesting Items Taken From the Warren Evening Times

In 1921

Reports from the various furniture factories in Warren are to the effect that labor conditions are slightly improved. It is generally understood that local furniture dealers are cutting last year's prices in two in order to get rid of the goods they have on hand.

There have been a number of reports throughout the county regarding the building of the Tidoute and Warren-Jamestown roads in this county. But Highway Commissioner Sadler has made no definite decision as yet.

Gasoline at the curb declined one cent per gallon yesterday, making the price 29 cents or if purchased from the tank wagons it may be secured at 26 1/2 per gallon. There are none of the garages in the city who have storage sufficient to handle gas in car load lots.

The Deerhorn Club held a dinner and meeting last evening when the annual trip to the camp in Canada, which will take place this year during the last of August, was discussed.

R. T. Adams, superintendent of Warren schools, is home from Atlantic City.

Parasol ants in New York's Bronx Zoo are fed rose petals.

Members and friends of the First Lutheran church completely filled the auditorium last evening with Dr. LeRoy B. Campbell giving the second of his series of talks on the Holy Land.

A sign three feet wide and eighteen inches long painted in large red letters advises visitors at the site of the new post office building corner of Liberty street and Third avenue that "No Help is Needed."

President R. Pierson Eaton presided at the meeting of the Kiwanis Club today. The speaker was W. L. McClure and singing was led by Bill Hill with Hubert Zwald at the piano.

Influenza and bad colds continue to prostrate many in Warren, the epidemic being felt the most by the schools.

Many citizens of the borough are protesting the rebuilding of the Pennsylvania Gas Company's mixing plant on Conewago avenue which was destroyed by an explosion last Friday.

L. L. Bishop, Federal Forest supervisor, will give an illustrated talk on his work at the meeting of Warren Grange Saturday afternoon in the Moose Hall.

'Schoolmaster President' Gave Argentina Culture

THE peaceful, democratic progress of Argentina dates from the administration of Domingo Faustino Sarmiento, pictured on the stamp above, one of the American republic's greatest educational leaders and statesmen.

Sarmiento was born during the revolution, exiled to Chile during Dictator Rosas' regime. In Chile he founded the first Chilean teachers' college, later traveled in United States and Europe, studying educational methods.

After Rosas' downfall in 1853, Sarmiento returned to Argentina, entered politics. He served in the legislature, as superintendent of schools, governor of San Juan province. In 1868 he was elected president.

Electron, in 1868, the schoolmaster devoted his efforts to improving the nation's economic and educational status. His administration was one of the most progressive in the republic's history.

Sarmiento also won fame as an author. His novel, "Facundo," was the first novel written by a Latin American to be translated into English.

A Washington Daybook

This is the first of three articles about the army's morale program.

By JACK STINETT

WASHINGTON—Morale is vital in any fighting force. Volumes have been written about it. There's no military man worth his salt who doesn't think about it constantly.

A great many civilians have a confused idea about morale. Many think it is the army's concern with morals. Morals are only a phase of it.

One definition that I got of morale: That mental quality and firmness which, in a body of troops, continues to function after everything else has broken down.

It is the quality which presses on to its goal in the face of the most discouraging circumstances and refuses to recognize that anything save success can result from correct efforts. In combat service, it is a quality which will survive disaster and sustain the mass or the individual to "take it" again and again until an opponent of lesser morale yields.

Almost Everything

SO YOU see, morale is almost everything and is affected by almost everything. If a soldier feels that the army is dishonoring him instead of a satisfying and appetizing meal; if his uniform doesn't fit and isn't something he can take pride in; if he feels the rifle he carries, the machine gun he mans, the plane he flies isn't just as good as the other fellow's, then he may not be worth a hoot when the attack comes.

These contributing factors are basic, so much so that we don't need to consider them here. What we can consider is that, sifting the lessons, particularly of the first World War, the military powers that be now have launched on a morale program the like of which the American army and navy never dreamed of.

In the first place, Congress appropriated about $3,700,000 for that alone. In the second, the army set up, under direction of the adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Emory S. Adams, its new morale division. This division acts almost entirely in an advisory capacity and as a clearing house, because the responsibility for the morale of the men in each camp rests solely with the commanding officer.

cer. In the last analysis, it is his problem and his success or failure, but it is up to the morale division to help in every way possible.

Nine Sections

PROBABLY the best way to explain it is to list the nine sections which make up the division—and their duties, as follows:

1. Administrative section—General supervision of the whole program.
2. Welfare section—Liaison with civilian welfare agencies and Red Cross. Operation and maintenance of guest houses on the posts, the service clubs (with their hostesses) and all matters pertaining to scholarships for army children, epidemics, government insurance, and the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act.

3. Recreation section—All recreational facilities, athletics, amateur theatricals, music and dances.
4. Library section—Post and camp libraries.

5. Budget and estimate section—Distribution of funds.
6. Miscellaneous section—Operation and maintenance of post exchanges, awarding of trophies, insignia and medals; and handling of all war department exhibitions at fairs, expositions and so forth.

7. The motion picture section—Booking and distribution of all movies that go to army posts and camps.
8. Decorations and awards section—Handling all decorations.

9. Civilian contact section—Handling press relations, civilian interviews, camp newspapers and publications and preparation of all morale material.

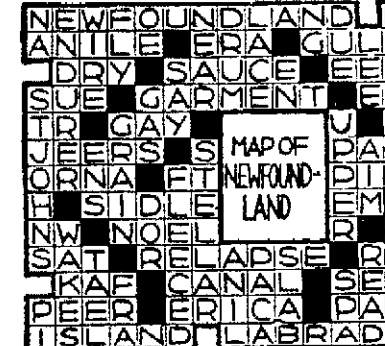

Is that a pretty big order or isn't it? In the next article we shall discuss what this means to the camps and to the boys "on the reservation."

America's Card Authority

This is the second in the series of six hands in which expert fools experts. The hand was given to me by Harry Fishbein of New York, who has held the world championship pair title for two straight years.

Fishbein sat South, and one of the country's finer card players was in the East position. The opening lead of the king of hearts was trumped by declarer with the three of spades.

The queen of diamonds was led. North won with the ace and returned a low heart. East ruffed with the four-spot, led a small diamond, trumping in dummy with the eight of spades.

The jack of spades was led. North's singleton queen covered. East played the king and Fishbein won with the ace. Fishbein returned another heart and declarer trumped.

The expert in the East figured correctly that North queen was a singleton, so he now started to play diamonds. Fishbein refused to trump the diamonds until he had discarded the three of clubs. Notice that he did not discard the seven, the jack and the ace.

On the next play he let go the heart queen. This left Fishbein with the seven and deuce of spades and the jack of clubs.

When East led another diamond Fishbein ruffed with the deuce of spades dummy over-ruffed with the nine-spot, but now declarer had to come out of dummy. He knew that Fishbein held the seven of spades. He also believed, due to Fishbein's discard of the ace of clubs, that if he led a club and ruffed low, South would over-ruff with the seven.

So he led a heart from dummy. Thus Fishbein could not be prevented from making his seven of trumps and defeating the contract.

man occupation of England, the best guess is that Japan will not make an offensive move against Britain or the United States or the Netherlands East Indies.

Campaign against Singapore is a tougher problem than most people realize. It is 2900 miles from Tokyo. Effective range of a fleet is 2500 miles. Along the route are Hong Kong and Manila. Both are vulnerable, but both would have to be taken before Japan would have a safe line of communications.

Singapore has its weaknesses. It has no fleet. Japan's navy has made greater progress in the handling of seaplanes from air-craft carriers than any other power. The number of men involved in any campaign in Malaya would not be large. Latest reports gave the combined British-Australian force at 100,000 Japan has 50,000 in French Indo-China and Singapore, in addition to its fortifications, does not have supplies to stand a two-year siege.

The Fellowship Of Prayer

I Saw
TUESDAY, MARCH 4 "In the year that King Uzziah died I saw."

Read Isaiah 6:1-5.

We are all like that. So long as the cherished and trusted surround us, we carry on nor seek to see beyond them. But when a household-chair is empty, health impaired, a business failed or a world order fallen to the dust, what we see through the gap becomes the source of our confidence or the burden of our despair.

If we see only emptiness we have no heart to go on. If we see only fate, we go as the driven go. If we see only a relentless order in which the passing of a state is like a falling leaf, the vastness of it all awes and numbs us.

If we see through the gap a wisdom beyond our own in action, a love that will not let us go, a challenge to our courage and new horizons of hope, then we can go on. For we have seen "the Lord... high and lifted up."

PRAYER: Lord of the Enduring and Refuge of the Needy, we who seek some assuring vision above the passing of so much in which we have trusted lift up our needs to Thee. Grant us vision to see Thy will still in holy action, Thy love still unfailing and Thy wisdom supreme above our folly and our fault. Send out Thy light and Thy love let them lead us. In His name, Who is Thy light. Amen.

Life Insurance in action!

BY ITS VERY NATURE, Life Insurance is an active, continuing force—a living force in the homes of millions who share its benefits.

Last year Metropolitan visited many homes in times of family crisis, for a total of over $182,000,000 was paid on account of death claims to scores of thousands of beneficiaries of Metropolitan policyholders. Dividends, matured endowments, annuity payments, disability, and health and accident claims, and other benefits paid or credited to living policyholders during the year amounted to more than $426,000,000. The total of almost $609,000,000 for payments to policyholders and beneficiaries is a record high for the Company.

Metropolitan funds, invested for the benefit of its policyholders, continued to play a part in the economic structure of the nation. These funds aided in financing Government activities, helped to keep industry humming and men in jobs, to erect public and private buildings, and assisted farmers to own their farms and to keep them in proper repair. However, the low interest rates generally prevailing, continued to have their effect on the Company's earnings and consequently on dividends to policyholders.

Moreover, through its Welfare activities, its nursing service for eligible policyholders, its research, its health and safety literature and advertising, Metropolitan again contributed to the task of bringing better health to America. The death rate of Metropolitan policyholders as a whole continued to be low, and mortality among Industrial policyholders was approximately the same as the 1939 figure, a record low for this group.

Metropolitan is a mutual life insurance company. This means that the assets of the Company are held for policyholders and their beneficiaries. The value of these assets will ultimately be paid out for their benefit... and for them only.

It's A Game Fencing's Fun — And It's Swell Exercise

AP Feature Service

BACK in long-gone years when skill in the "art of fence" often meant the difference between life and death on the field of combat, young men engaged in countless practice duels with friends. From practice for the grim business of to-the-death sword play has come one of today's best conditioning sports. More than 200,000 adult, college and high school fencers hail its benefits for health, suppleness and grace. Women are especially enthusiastic. Mildred Stewart and Helena Mroczkowska, shown here in action, are top-ranking amateurs. They're using foils, edgeless pointed swords. Other fencing weapons are the epee, more rigid than foil, and sabre, with cutting edge. Masks shown in first picture are always worn in combat. Mildred and Helena would have represented United States in 1940 Olympics. Fencing pals at Hofstra College, Long Island, Mildred started Helena in the sport 4 years ago.

1. MILDRED (right) starts with "low line" attack. Under the rules for foils, opponent must first parry this thrust before she can take the offensive.

2. HELENA EMPLOYS a "parry in octave" and wards off Mildred's foil. Now it's Helena's turn to assume offensive.

3. SHE SCORES touch on "riposte" (counter attack). First to get four touches wins.

MILDRED REMOVES tape which binds Italian foils to wrists (French foils aren't taped)

YOUR INCOME TAX

LOSSES ON STOCK TRANSACTIONS

No gain or loss is recognized for income-tax purposes as a result of the exchange of stock and securities in a corporation solely for stock or securities in another corporation in pursuance of a plan of reorganization to which both corporations are parties or as a result of the exchange of stock or securities in the same corporation in connection with a recapitalization. Where money or other property is received along with such exchanges taxable gain may result but no loss is recognized. The statute also prohibits the deduction for an loss from the sale or other disposition of stock or securities when the taxpayer, within a period of 30 days before or after the date of sale or other disposition, acquires or enters into a contract or option to acquire substantially identical stock or securities.

Capital Gains and Losses

The term "capital assets" is defined as the property held by the taxpayer (whether or not connected with his trade or business) but does not include stock in trade of the taxpayer or property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of his trade or business or property used in the trade or business of a taxpayer which is subject to the allowance for depreciation.

Capital gains and losses are classified as "short-term" (applicable to capital assets held for 12 months or less) and "long-term" (applicable to capital assets held for more than 12 months). Such gains and losses are taken into consideration in the percentages shown on the return under the period of time during which the assets were held.

Short-term capital losses are allowable only to the extent of short-term capital gains. However, any net short-term capital loss (not in excess of the net income for the taxable year) may be carried over against the short-term capital gains not already offset by short-term capital losses in such year. The carry-over is restricted to one year.

In the case of a net long-term capital gain or loss an alternative tax is imposed with respect to a gain if such tax is less than the normal tax and surtax on net income and in the event of a loss such alternative tax is imposed if greater than the normal tax and surtax on net income. Where a taxpayer derives a net long-term capital gain and computes his tax under section 117 (c) (1) relating to alternative taxes, the base for determining the 15-percent limitation on the charitable contributions deduction provided by section 23 (a) and the earned income credit provided by section 25 (a) (3) is "net income."

Where a taxpayer sustains a net long-term capital loss and computes his tax under section 117 (c) (2), the base for determining the charitable contributions deduction is "ordinary net income" that is "net income" plus the amount of the net long-term capital loss, and the base for determining the earned income credit is "ordinary net income" as adjusted for the charitable contributions deduction.

HELP TO STAMP OUT WHOOPIING COUGH

That Plague
of Children that Takes too much Toll...

Whooping cough is a racking, destructive and sometimes fatal, acute infectious disease, all too often looked upon as one "a child must have." Do not treat whooping cough lightly - it is serious for very young children, and most unpleasant and painful, in any case.

Medical Science has discovered a vaccine for this disease that often prevents a child contracting the disease. After whooping cough has developed, this vaccine will often cure in a week or two, and save weeks of suffering, and much mental anguish and broken rest for parents. Treatment is inexpensive, harmless, and attended by very little pain. Ask your doctor about it.

Gets Life for Killing Wife in Church

WIDER HIGHWAY ON ROUTE 6 IS CHAPMAN DESIRE

State Senator Leroy E. Chapman, of Warren, called today for extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike both east and west and declared Pennsylvania's rivers and highways "must be second to none," according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg.

Speaking before the state senate yesterday, Senator Chapman said, "Cleveland, Erie, Sharon, Warren, Kane, Scranton, must all have unimpeded highway routes - fast, safe routes - to uphold the hands and fulfill the needs of the great population in the east."

He said the Turnpike should be extended east to Philadelphia and west to the Ohio border and urged the rebuilding and widening into a six-lane highway of U. S. route 6 from the Ohio border to Port Jervis.

He also proposed furthering the flood control programs on state rivers and declared "the latest plan of linking the Ohio river and the Great Lakes via the French creek valley at Franklin should be carried out."

Urging that "petty political feuds be forgotten," the senator said "the big job now is to silence the guns of the dictators and then let the big guns of politics resume their reverberations."

Senator Chapman has been giving a series of weekly talks before the upper house at Harrisburg on national defense questions.

ATTORNEY SUICIDES
Upper Darby, March 4. (P.) - Ralph Kleeman, 26-year-old son of a Wilkes-Barre attorney, was found dead of a gunshot wound early today in the basement of his uncle's home, where he had been visiting. Detective Herbert Fleming quoted the uncle, Morris Brinkley, as saying he found the body after being awakened by a shot. Young Kleeman had been struck in the abdomen by a charge from a 12-gauge shot gun. Brinkley added, the detective said, that Kleeman recently had been ill and low in spirits.

BEWARE OF SPRING FEVER

BY PAUL BRAUNSCHWEIGER
Of The Mullen Drug Co.

"When winter comes, can spring be far behind?" So a poet described the certain march of the seasons.

Just as sure as spring follows winter, there comes a change in one's tastes, habits, inclinations. Often one has become so adjusted to battling with winter that the early days of spring bring on a certain lassitude, a weariness described in the time-honored way as "Spring Fever."

Do not meet spring with weariness of mind and body. It was meant for enjoyment, gladness, health.

See your doctor before the advent of milder days. Prepare by a well-adjusted schedule of diet and rest for glowing health and thorough pleasure in every sunny day.

If medication is prescribed, ask your doctor to suggest a druggist.
